1 Corrective Services Support Line

1.1 Policy

Corrective Services NSW (CSNSW) recognises the right of inmates to make inquiries and complaints, and to have them dealt with in a fair, effective and timely manner.

The CSSL provides an important inmate telephone service which supports the operational processes of correctional centres by receiving, recording and resolving complaints and inquiries made by inmates. In providing a formal structure for the early identification and resolution of general inmate inquiries and complaints, this service aims to:

- reduce the number of complaints made to the Ombudsman and the Office of the Inspector-General, by maintaining decision making at a local level
- reduce the escalation of problems and stress within the inmate population by providing an opportunity for redress, and for concerns and frustrations to be raised to create a safer environment for inmates and staff.

Inmates must be provided with access to the CSSL free of charge, in addition to their weekly call entitlement, and receive information regarding the functions of this service. Inmates should not be prevented or obstructed from contacting the CSSL, including while they are in segregation, protective custody or in confinement to cell.

CSSL representatives will visit correctional centres to meet with executive staff, the Manager Offender Services and Programs (MOSP), and members of the Inmate Development Committee (IDC) to provide information on the functions of the CSSL service. CSSL promotional material will also be provided to staff and inmates, including:

- A4 Laminated Posters (female and male versions) which are to be displayed in a prominent area near the OTS phones
- cards which are to be provided to inmates for issue in their accommodation areas and to staff for distribution in educational areas
- Common Auto Dial List (CADL) which provides information on all free calls available to inmates with instructions for use of the telephone.

The CSSL Team Leader will ensure that the CSSL service is being implemented correctly within correctional and transitional centres in NSW. Generally, the CSSL will only deal with inmate inquiries and complaints if inmates have attempted to resolve the matter locally with their accommodation officer(s), SAS or PCO at the correctional centre. However, inmates may directly contact the CSSL in exceptional circumstances where the inmate inquiry or complaint involves a:

- threat/act of violence
- security or safety issue
- threat of self-harm/suicide
- personal hygiene concerns
- urgent personal problem/crisis.

In these circumstances, the Governor and Manager of Security of the correctional will be notified by the CSSL to ensure that staff are aware of the issue. In the case that an immediate health issue has been raised, the CSSL will refer these directly to Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network (JH&FMHN) staff.

Inmates may also seek to resolve their inquiry or concerns with the IDC or an Official Visitor (see COPP section 9.6 Inmate Complaints to Ombudsman and 10.8 Visits from Officials).

Importantly, the CSSL is not an appeal body for inmates in segregated or protective custody, or in relation to disciplinary charges, and is not able to override a direction or decision made by a Governor or other officer.

The CSSL does not conduct investigations, or provide information to inmates regarding the charges they are in custody for, or classification and parole review decisions.

Where necessary, a referral report may be emailed from the CSSL to the CSSL generic email account for the centre or area. These reports will not contain sensitive medical information for CSNSW staff due to privacy concerns. The SAS or PCO are responsible for ensuring that all referrals sent to the generic CSSL email accounts are accessed and actioned. This may be allocated to an authorised officer for action, however, the SAS or PCO are still responsible for coordinating, following up, and resolving the matter.

CSSL reports are not to be shown or handed to any inmate, including the inmate that initiated the request. If an inmate wishes to obtain a copy of the report, they may apply through the processes set out in the Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009 (GIPAA) (see COPP section 22.3 Government Information and Public Access Act (2009)).

The SAS or PCO are to advise the CSSL of all action and resolutions within 3 business days. If an issue is not resolved within this time, the CSSL should be informed of all action to date, and an estimate for when the matter will be determined or resolved. CSNSW staff may contact the CSSL by email at CSSL.Support@justice.nsw.gov.au. Emails must not be sent to the personal email addresses of staff employed in the CSSL.

1.2 Procedures for Accessing the CSSL Generic Email

The generic email account for the centre or area is generally available to all SAS, PCO or authorised officers who have been granted access. This is subject to the Governor requesting alternative arrangements. An application for access to be granted may be requested from the CSSL. Procedures for accessing generic CSSL email accounts should be accessed.

1.4 Procedures for reporting by CSSL

The CSSL is responsible for collecting, analysing and disseminating data obtained for all information received at the end of each month. This information contributes to trend analysis, future planning and strategic development of services for improved delivery. The information will be provided to:

- Governors with a report listing all received and actioned matters during that month, and any outstanding matters.
