

7 September 2017

Safe Hands campaign launch: Child protection is public business

PSA takes up the fight to protect and rebuild child protection

On 4 September, members took to the streets of Coniston to launch the campaign to protect the public provision of child protection.

See photos of the event HERE

Watch the video of PSA Assistant General Secretary Troy Wright launching the campaign HERE

Getting the message out

A key part of the campaign is to alert the community to the critical, but often unseen work being undertaken by members in Community Services including Caseworkers, Managers Casework, Psychologists, Legal staff, other casework specialist staff and the vital admin staff who are essential in the delivery of quality services to children.

You can start by raising the profile of the campaign in your workplace.

You can download the poster HERE and put it up on your PSA notice board.

Don't have PSA noticeboard? Your award gives you the right to a union noticeboard in your workplace.

For support in requesting a noticeboard contact us at FACSOrganising@psa.asn.au.

Media highlights risks to vulnerable children

The PSA has been working to promote the issues facing Community Services' members resulting in a story in the Sunday Telegraph.

Read the story HERE

Keeping up the pressure – escalating our campaign

PSA Community Services' members and delegates from across NSW have been taking up the fight and will be leading this campaign into the future.

We know the Government will keep trying to bury our issues, but our voices will not be silenced.

The only way we can win is if we all work together over the coming months.

What can you do?

It's easy to support the Safe Hands campaign!

1. Download the poster HERE and put it up on your PSA Noticeboard
2. Keep up to date by liking the PSA Facebook page HERE
3. Hold a PSA Safe Hands morning tea, lunch or meeting in your office.

We are here to support your campaign actions, contact us at FACSOrganising@psa.asn.au.

